

Volunteer and Professional Opportunities with Pittwater Council's Coastal Environment Centre

Pittwater Council's Coastal Environment Centre (CEC) is recognised for the quality of its environmental education programs and the professionalism of its staff. The Centre is well situated to provide people with a strong interest or commitment to environmental education with opportunities to gain experience and skills in program delivery. The CEC maintains a pool of volunteer and paid staff that are able to assist, or when qualified take a lead in the delivery of environmental education programs to residents and visitors in Pittwater Council LGA.

Individuals approaching the CEC will initially be welcomed as volunteers and provided with an opportunity to meet the manager and coordinating staff. Volunteer opportunities will reflect the interests and skills of individuals. Volunteers who have the necessary skills and experience may be able to take on paid work as it becomes available.

Traditionally the CEC has not been able to provide fulltime employment, but more often casual part-time work. It is possible for a person to assume a leadership role in one aspect of the CEC program while still maintaining a volunteer status in other areas.
